For the Love of Farming – Clark County 2008

A Glimpse at Contemporary Clark County Farms

Produced & Directed by Mary Grgich & Crystine Jividen

Clark County, WA farms continue to evolve and adapt to a changing landscape. Pressures related to urban development challenge the survival of the family farm. Working with WSU Clark County Extension Small Farms Program, Mary Grgich and Crystine Jividen take a look at what local farmers do to maintain sustainable practices and to continue farming in the changing and challenging environment of urbanization. Eleven Clark County farmers were interviewed for this custom DVD narrated by Lex Browning and featuring music courtesy of Mike George and Trails End Productions. For the Love of Farming was produced in conjunction with our hosting the exhibit, Sustaining Change on the American Farm: An Artist-Farmer Exchange January 17 to April 30, 2008.

The video discs can be purchased from the museum by phone or by mail for $12 (members receive 10% off of cover price $10.80), plus $5.00 shipping and handling and $.97 sales tax for Washington residents (reduced S&H rate for multiple copies, please contact the museum). Submit order form and $12.98 (members $11.69) prices include 8.2% sales tax plus shipping if applicable to:
